A Trip Inside the Trader Brain

At the 2023 Festival of Learning, Raoul Pal and Tony Greer, founder of TG Macro, laid down on the proverbial psychologist's couch with renowned Wall Street performance coach Denise Shull.

Denise specializes in helping traders understand their impulses and motivations to improve their bottom line. But could she peel back the layers to discover what makes Raoul and Tony tick?

From Raoul's early world travels as a child of immigrants to Tony's hyper-competitive blue-collar background, Denise got both to open up in ways you've likely never heard before.

If you enjoyed Daniel on how cognitive biases and belief systems influence our day-to-day decision-making, you'll love this enlightening look at how our personality traits and triggers inform our respective trading processes.

Crypto Academy Sessions, Ep. 2 — Why Macro is Fundamental to Crypto

A former high-yield credit derivatives trader at Barclays Bank in London, Ovie "OSF" Faruq was forced to sink or swim within the macro world's most volatile and illiquid markets from the onset of his career.

Those early experiences informed not only his market views and which assets he likes to trade but also the broader decision-making process that he applies to his everyday life.

And, of course, it's what drew him to the wild world of crypto.

In this lesson, OSF drills down on the macro lessons he learned from a decade as a high-yield credit trader in London. He walks us through the key macro data that crypto investors need to watch, explains the correlations between the two markets, and looks at how certain TradFi indicators and events impact crypto prices more than others.

If you're looking to improve your crypto decision-making, this is the tutorial for you.

The Exponential Age Series: Part 5

Back in October 2023, we dropped the Exponential Age series — 2 weeks of in-depth interviews to set the stage for the biggest technological revolution that we've seen in human history.

The entire series was great, but perhaps the most mind-blowing discussion was one between Raoul Pal and Dr. Leon Alkalai, founder of Mandala Space Ventures and a 32-year veteran of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Among many other missions, Leon worked on the Sojourner rover on Mars, the GRAIL mission to the moon, and NASA's InSight lander mission to Mars before launching his early-stage venture capital firm focused on space exploration.

Raoul and Leon dig into everything from the commodification of the space race, to "space manufacturing" breakthroughs and how investing in space fits into Raoul's Exponential Age thesis. Plus, Leon explains how expanding our perspective to the outer realm will improve global communications and potentially shift society's collective incentives and decision-making.
